Trains Into Vancouver Six Hours Late; Fraser Families Marooned

VANCOUVER (CP)—Canadian National Railways transcontinental line and the Trans-Canada Highway were blocked 120 miles east of here today as heavy rain clawed chunks of rock and mud from the walls of the Fraser Canyon.

About 10 miles south of Hell's Gate, a flume carrying the mountain run-off over the tracks was smashed and the water hacked out 40 feet of steel.

Crews were rushed to the trouble spot and C.N.R. trains were re-routed on Canadian Pacific Railway tracks, which run along the opposite wall of the canyon.

Gov't Boosts Wheat Payment By 20 Cents

Increases Also For Oats, Barley

OTTAWA (CP)—Trade Minister Howe today announced that the government has boosted the initial payment on wheat delivered to the Canadian Wheat Board by 20 cents a bushel and made comparative payment increases for oats and barley. The new payments become effective Feb. 1.

The initial payment on oats is raised by 10 cents a bushel and on barley by 20 cents a bushel. The increases apply to all grades of wheat, oats and barley delivered or to be delivered to the board during the 1950-51 crop year.

With these increases, the new initial payments are:

Wheat—$1.60 a bushel, basis No. 1 northern wheat in store at Port Arthur or Fort Arthur.

Oats—75 cents a bushel, basis No. 2 Canadian oats in store at Port Arthur or Fort Arthur.

Barley—$1.12 a bushel, basis No. 3 Canada western 6 row barley in store at Port Arthur or Fort Arthur.

Await Freight Rate Decision By Rail Board

OTTAWA (CP)—The Board of Transport Commissioners today reserved decision on a railway application for a general freight rate increase of 5 per cent.

The $23,000,000-a-year increase is sought to meet the cost of the 7-cent-an-hour wage boost obtained by railway employees last year.

Argument in the case was completed today by railway counsel and Wednesday by lawyers for seven provincial governments—all except Ontario, Quebec and British Columbia—which are opposing the application.

For the Canadian National Railways, counsel Hugh O'Donnell said today the rate increase was justified by rising costs. Expenses were "very definitely" on the upturn.

CHINESE LEARN CASABA GAME THE RUSSIAN WAY

HONGKONG (UP)—The official Chinese Communist news agency complained today a team of towering Russian basketball players visited China recently and handed a team of smaller Chinese a terrific loss of face.

The news agency, and reports from Shanghai, indicated the Russians brought their own referees, rewrote the accepted basketball rules, changed the equipment, and then proceeded to pummel the Chinese in every game.

The Chinese complained the Russian ball felt as heavy as a bowling ball.

During the game, one of the Chinese sprained his ankle. The referee sent him back into the game to prove that "it was not the Russian's fault."

Operations Of 'Quiz' Group Told Justices

Vancouver Operator Appeals Conviction

Appeal Court justices were told today how a man upon joining the Vancouver "Home Quiz Club" could at the end of several weeks derive benefits from the organization amounting to over $2,000.

The explanation on how the club operated was given by A. E. Branca, counsel for William Swanson, executive president of the club, who is appealing a conviction under the lottery section of the Criminal Code.

A person paid $1.05 for membership in the club and on bringing additional members to the organization rose gradually from one office to another until he finally became president. When he reached the top he received the assets of the club.

"Each new member introduces new members to the club," said Mr. Branca. "The club naturally multiplies and I might say it might be necessary with time to get members to join from the United States and China. But the point is there is no element of chance connected with the club."

Mr. Justice C. H. O'Halloran was somewhat puzzled with the name "quiz club."

"Don't they have to answer any questions?" he asked the counsel.

Mr. Branca said there was no quiz connected with the club and he did not know why the club had been so named.

The appeal is continuing.

A sixth company, Canadian Delhi Oil Company, has applied for a permit to export gas to eastern Canada. Its hearing has been set for Feb. 5.

Any of the applicants could have its case reopened before September if new evidence warranted reconsideration of the application, the Premier said.

He said the application of the following companies would be "continued" until Sept. 4, 1951: Westcoast Transmission Company Limited.

Northwest Natural Gas Company and Alberta Natural Gas Grid Limited.

Prairie Pipe Lines Limited. Western Pipe Lines. McColli-Fontenac Oil Company and Union Oil Company of California.

Westcoast, Northwest and Prairie propose to supply gas to British Columbia and possibly the northwestern United States; Western aims to supply Saskatchewan and Manitoba; McColli-Fontenac would pipe gas to Montana.

Hearings on their applications have been held and decision deferred.

U.S. Living Costs At Peak

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. cost-of-living index today was reported at a peak and the economic stabilization agency's top trio called final parleys on the imminent freeze of prices and wages.

The twin orders may come late today but more probably Friday—depending on the outcome of today's conferences between E.S.A. Administrator Eric Johnston and his price-and-wage chiefs.

Well-placed officials predicted prices would be pegged at Jan. 2 levels and pay cheques at current wage rates—but with leeway for some workers to do more bargaining.

EASE-UP OR CALM BEFORE STORM

Korean Quiet May Mean Build-Up For Offensive Or Hint Of Cease-Fire

By EDWARD E. BOMAR

WASHINGTON (AP)—The current lull in the Korean fighting is viewed by American officials here as probably a calm before the storm of a new Chinese Communist onslaught likely to break at any time.

Whether the easing pressure against the United Nations forces was a political or military manoeuvre by Peiping has been a puzzling question in Washington for days. In Tokyo, there was speculation the Chinese have pulled back to await political developments.

But informed officials here contend the Chinese and their North Korean allies are building up steadily for another offensive as part of the Communist's ultimate aim of winning control of all Korea.

Top authorities have discarded any ideas that Peiping is holding back because of the efforts in the United Nations General Assembly to work out a compromise settlement.

WEAPONS MOVED IN

Reports from air observation and other sources indicates a continuing reinforcement of Communist forces particularly in the Seoul area. They include evidence that artillery and other heavy weapons are being moved into Korea from the Manchurian border.

When the blow comes, U.N. forces are prepared to inflict heavier losses than the attackers have suffered thus far, officials say. The policy of putting a "high price tag on aggression" is expected to be followed through indefinitely.

Part of this policy of fighting it out is that to hold the Chinese at bay in Korea is one means of balking any plans the Communists may have to move against Hongkong and Indo-China.

(Military sources in London speculated to the same effect as that in Washington. A Reuters report said Chinese taken prisoners say their troops are suffering severe hardships. Up to 50 per cent in some areas are reported to have frostbite. (All prisoners speak of shortage of supplies, including food, and it has become almost impossible now to live off the land.)

Three Destroyers From This Port On Scene Of Battle

TOKYO (Reuters)—United Nations naval units tonight stood off Inchon, West Coast Korean port, crashing tons of shells on to the city and dockyards.

Canadian and other British Commonwealth warships were taking part in the operation but there were no details of any supporting ground action.

It was not known immediately how many Canadian ships were taking part in the operation. Canada has three destroyers in Korean waters—the Cayuga, Athabaskan and Nootka.

Inchon, held by the Communists since United Nations forces fell back there at the beginning of January, was the port at which Gen. MacArthur threw in his vast seaborne invasion force Sept. 9 last year to split and crush the original North Korean offensive.

It is 20 miles west of Seoul, Communist-occupied South Korean capital. United Nations forces evacuated the port Jan. 4.

Two of the Canadian destroyers, Cayuga and Athabaskan, have been in Korean waters since the summer and have seen plenty of action. They have shelled Communist-held shore points, carried out screening duties with larger U.N. naval units and some of the Canadian crews have been part of landing parties in action against Red-held islands.

The Nootka is the newest Canadian arrival in Korean waters. She replaced the Sioux, one of the original three, several weeks ago.

A fourth Canadian destroyer, the Huron, sailed from Halifax Monday to replace the Cayuga but is not expected at her station for several weeks.

The Cayuga participated in the evacuation of Inchon early this month when U.N. forces pulled out of that port as the Communists advanced. Her duty was to escort fuel and supply ships out of the harbor.

In mid-December, the Cayuga, Athabaskan and Sioux, with other U.N. destroyers, helped screen the evacuation of 8,400 military personnel from the port of Chinnampo and then moved in to destroy port installations with their guns.

There was no enemy contact Wednesday night except for a minor patrol clash near Yogu, 40 miles southeast of the abandoned south Korean capital of Seoul.

A few Korean Reds were encountered in the same general area, north of Kumyangjang and Ichon.

Allied air power today gave the Reds no rest far behind the lines. Planes plastered military targets throughout North Korea. The town of Chunchon was wrecked.

More Russian-type planes were thrown into the fight, with Yak night fighters attacking U.S. B-26s on night intruder missions Wednesday night. It was one of their few appearances in the Korean war. No damage was caused by the enemy planes.

Attend Parades Or Return Kits

Some 130 soldiers of the Reserve Army units in Victoria who have not been attending parades over a period of time are going to be asked to either "smarten up" or turn in their kits.

Units involved are the 1st Battalion, The Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's) and the 75th H.A.A. Regiment, R.C.A.

Defaulters are classed "deadwood." Some, however, have moved away from this locality.

The moves come as commanding officers of the two units reported recruiting has stepped up considerably "and bringing out a fine calibre of young men."

Registered letters are to be sent to 80 members of the Scottish, according to Lt.-Col. Walter Mosedale. Lt. Col. W. Jack Farnsworth said the move involved 50 men on his strength.

The property, owned privately, is reported to have been leased to a logging company which intends cutting between 1,000,000 and 1,500,000 board feet of lumber.

Fish and game officials, as well as tourist promoters, say the operation will ruin one of Vancouver Island's finest scenic attractions.

Mr. Kenney said he would not go as far as to say nothing could be done to preserve the area from logging "scars."

"But the government can hardly be expected to buy every piece of property someone wants to save from being logged off," he said.

It has been suggested the government might trade one of its stands for the Malahat forest.

Said Mr. Kenney: "The government always comes out 'second best' in a deal of this kind."

HE HOPES IT IS AMBERGRIS

COURTENAY — Denman Islander Jim Dalziel may have a small fortune in "wax."

Dalziel has a 40-pound chunk of what he hopes is ambergris worth $10,000, which he found off the east coast of the island.

He has sent a piece to Victoria for analysis.

ONE WOMAN'S DAY

By NANCY HODGES

WIND-BLOWN ECHOES

AS THIS IS being written, the sun is shining after a shower, and there is an ineffable peace and a feeling of balmy spring in the air. I know I am tempting Providence, to say nothing of the Weather Man, by saying so, for we are enjoying a lull between blustery gusts and it is more than likely that an hour after I have concluded this column the wind will be tearing around again—to say nothing of what we might be experiencing by the time it appears in print.

Having thus crossed my fingers to exorcise any impish elements that might be lurking around, it is safe to say that, in this sheltered spot where we live, the damage was negligible.

HAVOC WITH HEDGE

NOT A TREE was blown down, although twigs littered the lawn. But I felt like weeping at the havoc wrought in our cherished broom hedge by the gale. With its sturdy stems twisted and broken, I fear me that the golden shield which used to delight us in the spring, and the birds in fall and winter, will be missing this year.

However, we were fortunate in the light of the damage suffered in more exposed spots. But while making all allowances for the rather disturbing effect of a 72-mile-an-hour wind and without wishing to minimize the actual damage it did, I must say I opened my eyes on learning the velocity it had attained and the damage it had wrought by the time it reached the mainland press.

WORSE THAN FLORIDA

JUDGING BY THE Vancouver papers, Victoria bore an uncomfortably close resemblance to Florida after one of its worst tropical hurricanes. Our storm was described as an "80-mile-an-hour hurricane which left the Greater Victoria area stranded as far as transportation and communications went." The impression was given that every bus and every bit of electricity, light and power, had been put out of commission by the elements.

The few flakes of snow or sleet that fell, so fleeting as to compare with Omar Khayyam's "snow upon the desert's dusty face, lighting a little hour or two," attained blizzard, almost knee-deep proportions under the libelous misinterpretation of the mainland press. It, too, I learned, had contributed to the complete dislocation of traffic!

TRAFFIC DISCOMBOBOLATED

AFTER READING those items, so throbbing with "local color," I felt I had been cheated out of some excitement while in town on the day of the GREAT GALE. As it was, the nearest thing I saw to traffic discombobulation was the struggle a little English car, not much bigger than a roller skate, was having to keep to the ground. The wind tore at it as if playfully trying to engage it in a race with the hats I saw tearing down the same road.

I chortled again when, a few days later, I read a clipping from the Toronto Star, kindly sent to me by a neighbor, in which our weather vagaries were described under the heading: "Wind Flattens 30 in B.C." And, to my amazement, I read further down, that the hurricane here was so powerful that residents were knocked down all over the place, about 30 being injured in this manner, evidently flattened by the zephyr's steamroller tactics. Furthermore, I learned from the same source that "dozens of cars were wrecked as trees came crashing down," and branches littered the city.

BENT BUT NOT BROKEN

I DON'T KNOW where those things happened—outside of the imagination of the correspondent—as I certainly didn't hear locally of 30 people being flattened, although while down town I did see some people bent into queer shapes as they struggled against the gusts, nor did I notice our downtown streets littered with fallen trees and crushed cars.

And I am not pretending that the experience of being buffeted by a 72-mile-an-hour gale at our windiest street corners is something I want to repeat very often.

ENVY AND FRUSTRATION

SO, MORE IN sorrow than in anger, I put such distorted accounts of our unusual weather down to jealousy on the part of frustrated mainlanders doomed to live their winters of discontent in torrential rains, frustrating fogs, or subzero temperatures.

It is said misery loves company and when official figures show Vancouver temperatures and precipitation as 35 and .41 respectively, against our 42 and .13, and the prairies and east shivering in icy, minus-zero blasts, you can't begrudge them the comfort the news that this favored spot is having unusual weather must bring to their chilled and sodden marrows.

EARLY DAFFODILS

Mild Weather Points To Record Island Crop

A record early daffodil crop is expected by Vancouver Island growers if the mild weather continues throughout February.

With a little more sunshine the main crop of flowers which are shipped by the thousands eastward in eastern Canada still in the grip of winter will be ready for harvesting at the end of February, growers report.

The golden blooms are over a month in advance of last year's harvest which was retarded by snow and freezing temperatures during February and March. The majority of flowers were picked then at the beginning of April. Growers said the daffodils needed a little more sunshine to hurry them along to the flowering stage.

They said there was a good market for cut flowers in eastern Canada providing the blooms were early enough.

Congratulates Duncan On Its Enterprising Publicity

SPECIAL TO THE TIMES

DUNCAN—Congratulations to Duncan for the international publicity it had promoted for British Columbia were extended by Geoffrey I. Edgelow in an address to the Kiwanis Club last night.

He complimented the club on sponsorship of the Indian play "Tzinquaw," news and pictures of which were published in newspapers and magazines throughout the United States and Canada.

Presentation of Indian sweaters to President Truman, film stars and other notable characters had turned the spotlight on the Cowichan Valley through news stories throughout the world, he said.

"Except that you haven't yet been able to produce quintuplets you have done a wonderful job of exploitation," Mr. Edgelow remarked.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government Wednesday banned use of nickel in automobile trim and in nearly 400 other civilian products.

(In Ottawa, a plan to provide compulsory priority under which defence and essential production will get top billing, is being studied for nickel, copper and zinc, it was learned today.)

North Cowichan Will Dispute School Costs

Reeve Beasley Says Action Will Be Taken When Estimates Received

By DON INGHAM

DUNCAN—North Cowichan Municipality is ready to dispute its share of the school cost of School District 67, according to Reeve A. E. Beasley.

"As soon as the school estimates are received from District 67 School Board, it is the intention of North Cowichan to take them to arbitration," he said, owing to the fact that at the present time we are taxing machinery where the provincial government is not in the same district."

Reeve Beasley continued: "There is some doubt in the minds of provincial government officials as to whether we have the power to apply this tax. However, owing to the fact that they set the policy of municipal and provincial acts governing such matters, which read the same on taxation as the Municipal Act, there is no doubt in our minds that we are in the right by eliminating the tax on machinery in our municipality for the 1951 estimates."

"This was brought to the attention of provincial government officials last spring. Therefore they have had plenty of time to rectify this matter, but they did not see fit to send the equalization board up to see us until after Oct. 31, closing date for 1951 assessments."

The municipality is actually in two school districts. The northern portion, which is giving rise to this dispute, is in District 65 with the city of Ladymith and the North Oyster area of provincial government land.

The remainder lies in Cowichan School District 65, which includes Duncan and areas further south.

HAD NO TIME TO BE ROBBED

EVANSVILLE, Ind. (AP)—A masked gunman flashed a pistol under Charles Rutherford's nose and said: "This is a stick-up."

Rutherford, 60-year-old operator of a barbecue stand, refused to be interrupted.

"I haven't got time to be stuck up," he said. "I'm trying to find a dipper to get my wife some ice cream."

Rutherford plodded toward a back room, still looking for the dipper. The flustered gunman fled.

Air Arms Standard

LONDON (AP)—The United States and British naval air arms have achieved "complete standardization" in the techniques of landing on their aircraft carriers. James Callaghan, Parliamentary Secretary to the Admiralty, told the House of Commons Wednesday that all possible steps are being taken as well to standardize new anti-aircraft gunnery equipment.

Growing Production Cost Problem For Newspapers

Newspapers, faced with added responsibilities and lowered incomes, must undergo drastic changes for survival, Stuart Keate, publisher of the Victoria Daily Times, told members of the Victoria Rotary Club today at the Empress Hotel.

"Our profession, if not a dying one, is certainly a shrinking one," he said. "There are today in America 40 per cent less daily newspapers than there were in 1929. In the United States today there are competing daily newspapers in only one city out of 12."

Reasons for this situation, he said, are the increased costs of production regarding material, machinery, and labor; the high cost of giving the reader as complete a picture as possible of world conditions day to day; and increased services which readers demand in the face of competition from other sources.

At the Times, he said, the management bargains with eight distinct unions annually. Even reporters, he said, work a 37½-hour week with time and one-half for overtime.

"Our costs of production are mounting, but our incomes from advertising and circulation have definite limits," Mr. Keate said. "Newspapers were 5 cents before the war and they're 5 cents today. No other commodity can make this claim—or if they can I haven't heard about them."

TOWARD SMALLER NEWSPAPERS

The trend, he said, will be toward smaller newspapers, with a possible return to the wartime practice of rationing advertising. Publishers will endeavor to maintain quality though losing quantity, he said, through tighter writing and elimination of some features.

During the last three months of 1950, Mr. Keate said, the Times averaged 28.2 pages daily. The national average size of papers of 20,000 circulation in Canada is 21 pages.

"Our ratio of advertising to news would appear to be better balanced in favor of the reader," he said. "The Canadian average is 55 per cent advertising to 45 per cent news, and for the last six months of 1950 the Times ran just about 50-50."

ECONOMIC "HORSE SENSE"
Use of a common printing plant by both Victoria papers is just economic "horse sense," he said. Machines in each plant are idle two-thirds of each day and through the merger of plants publishers hope to achieve maximum performance.

and a more economic operation. An example of the staggering cost of a newspaper plant was given by Mr. Keate in an account of the demise of the Edmonton Bulletin. Although solvent, he said, with greatly increased circulation and advertising revenue, it required capital expenditures of more than a million dollars to make a decent operating profit and to grow with the city.

"Our business is passing through a difficult transition period," Mr. Keate said, "but while it is difficult it is challenging and exciting."

NEWSPAPER'S DUTY

The need for honest, accurate information has never been more vital, he said. It is the duty of the newspaper to create the best possible medium of communication, and to act as the hub and nerve centre of communication in its community.

"The only workable rule I know on which to build a newspaper is that the news column belongs to our readers and the editorial page to ourselves," Mr. Keate said.

"Any citizen of this community who has anything to say should be able to say it with the assurance that his views and information will be fairly reported the next day," Mr. Keate said.

He remarked that newspapers have dropped old political affiliations to a great extent. Out of 84 papers polled, he said, he found only six aligned with either of the old-line parties.

"It seems to me that 'independence' is a good word to have around an office that aims to speak for all sections of society," Mr. Keate concluded. "The attainment of commercial independence brought the press freedom from the old party obligations. The newspaper that wins and holds respect today is the one which lashes out fearlessly and objectively for what it believes to be the common good."

Relief Workers In New Guinea Face New Peril

PORT MORESBY, New Guinea (Reuter)—Relief workers in the jungle graveyard around volcanic Mount Lamington today refused to abandon their task of rescue despite signs of new eruptions from the rumbling crater.

No word of major volcanic activity came from the area of devastation, although a report reaching Australia said there had been a new explosion of scalding lava early this morning.

The evacuation order was issued Wednesday. Everyone within a 16-mile radius of Mount Lamington was ordered out of what has become a dust-covered burial ground for some 4,000 persons.

J. K. Murray, in charge of an emergency hospital where hundreds of burned survivors have received first aid, radioed that doctors and nurses will stay on the job as long as they can.

He said the stench of rotting bodies fills the blasted jungle around the eruption scene.

Authorities say 50 per cent of the local population—at least 4,000 natives—were killed when the volcano erupted, blowing 2,000 feet off its peak.

Woman Golfer Sues 'Bomber'

NEW YORK (UP)—A young woman golfer from Harlem has asked $100,000 damages from former heavyweight boxing champion Joe Louis for permanently injuring her in a beating in a Cleveland hotel.

Odessa Calloway, 28, a negro, said in a civil suit the "Brown Bomber" made an unprovoked attack on her last July 4 in the hotel where she was staying while competing in an amateur golf tourney. She did not explain the circumstances leading to the alleged hotel room bout with the former champion.

Louis also is defendant in a $500,000 alienation of affections suit filed by a Chicago Negro minister, the Rev. Matthew C. Faulkner, who also named him co-respondent in a divorce suit against his pretty wife, a Manhattan model, in June, 1949.

'Ike' En Route To Iceland; In Canada Friday

By CARTER DAVIDSON

PARIS (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower left by plane today for Iceland, continuing his survey tour of Atlantic Pact countries and their plans to defend western Europe against Russian communism.

As Eisenhower flew homeward after his hurried two-week tour of west European Atlantic Pact signers, France marked the end of his visit by naming a top military man to head all of her armed forces—a move the new supreme Atlantic Pact commander is reported to have urged.

Gen. Alphonse Juin was appointed to the new post of Inspector-general of French armed forces.

Eisenhower had another reason here to feel he was making progress in arousing western Europe against Communist danger. Red plans for demonstrations against him flopped completely in Paris and other French cities.

After conferences in Iceland, Eisenhower will fly to Ottawa, where tomorrow he will make another of his first-hand surveys.

Avalanches In Alps Isolate About 15,000

Scores Of Villages In Austria Cut Off

VIENNA (AP)—An estimated 15,000 Austrian villagers and foreign tourists remained cut off from the world today in Alpine villages isolated by avalanches which have killed about 250 persons. Scores of villages in the Austrian Alps still were without power and water.

Despite warm winds from Italy that presented the peril of new avalanches, the country remained free of major snowslides to add to the five-day disaster that has taken a toll of possibly 124 lives. Others died in weekend snow slides in Switzerland, Italy, France and Germany.

For the first time, avalanche reports came from southern Bavaria where five avalanches have crashed down the steep slopes of the Hochries Mountain, south of Rosenheim, to injure one man severely and bury another.

Italian rescue teams were in constant danger from possible new slides as they labored in the lonely valleys to extricate bodies of victims.

In addition, parts of Austria's Salzburg province were menaced by floods from mountain streams piling up behind avalanche piles that dam the valley river beds.

A Swiss six-man rescue team failed today to break through to the hospice belonging to the famed St. Bernard Monastery at the top of the Simplon Pass.

The Price Of Lumber

THE ECONOMICS OF THE BRITISH Columbia timber industry are so complex that no outsider can judge whether the latest demands of its workers, the I.W.A., are reasonable or not. But the tone in which those demands are framed, the uncompromising attitude which (perhaps unintentionally) they seem to reflect, is disturbing.

Six months before the end of the present working contract, when the position of the industry next summer cannot be foreseen, when it may be drastically altered by a price ceiling in the United States, its major market, it is presented with an ultimatum from the woodworkers' union.

This may be just a first bargaining gambit. The union, it is to be hoped, will be ready to discuss its demands in the light of conditions prevailing when the new contract comes due. Certainly a strike which paralyzed British Columbia's chief industry at the very moment when maximum production is required both for defence and civilian purposes would be a calamity.

Meanwhile the timber workers and their employers are bound in the public interest and in their own to consider the results of raising the cost of producing lumber.

The present high price of lumber is not paid by Santa Claus. It is not paid mainly by rich men who can afford it. The price is paid mainly by working people who need it to build houses. Every Canadian who builds a house, every Canadian who pays rent governed by the cost of houses, pays his contribution to the wages of the timber workers.

When the timber workers increase their wages, whether the increase is justified or not, they can secure a larger part of the nation's total supply of goods. Since the supply is limited, this simply means that other groups of workers will receive a smaller share. And no increase in money wages and the debasement of the dollar can alter that mathematical fact.

Thus the third invisible party to the present wage negotiations is the Canadian worker outside the timber industry. And if that party also raises his money wages to keep up with the wages of the timber industry the timber worker will have to pay higher prices for the goods he buys. No one escapes the scythe of inflation.

The timber union no doubt will argue that the operators can pay higher wages out of their profits without raising prices. This is probably true of certain large companies with profits at an all-time high, but even if they spent all their profits to raise wages that would not solve the problem of smaller operators, many of whom were almost put out of business by a temporary drop in U.S. lumber prices last autumn.

It should not be forgotten that a large part of the profits of the major operators have been poured back into the industry to create among other things two giant new pulp industries on Vancouver Island which will employ large numbers of men. Profits are not lost to the community or to the workers.

It may be that some operators can meet the union's present demands without raising prices. It is clear that some operators cannot. It is certain from the experience of the last five years that any substantial rise in the cost of producing lumber will be handed on to the consumer in the form of prices which already make housing costs almost prohibitive for the working people.

The I.W.A. insists that the government must not freeze wages. It thereby rejects any government freeze on prices, since prices cannot be frozen if wages rise. But unions which insist on heavy wage increases, with resulting price increases, drive governments to the desperate step of wage freezing which the I.W.A. opposes. That result has been forced upon the United States already by a ruinous wage-price spiral. It can be forced upon Canada also by employers who expect excessive profits and unions which demand excessive wages.

But Who Preserves The Consumer?

THE LIBERALISM OF MR. JAMES Gardiner, Canadian Minister of Agriculture, was always a flexible and restless doctrine, difficult for the lay mind to follow.

Thus when Mr. Gardiner says that the government's policy is to preserve the Canadian butter market for the Canadian producer, to admit no more foreign butter while there are ample supplies here, the ordinary Canadian must wonder how this squares with the government's general trade policy. For assuredly the government has never undertaken to preserve the Canadian market for any other producer. Such a theory of total protection from outside competition is the total negation of the government's policy of maximum imports and exports. If seriously attempted, the preservation of the Canadian market for Canadian producers would deny and abort the Geneva tariff agreements which, by lowering tariffs, have vastly expanded Canadian trade and given the nation unexampled prosperity.

The total exclusion of New Zealand butter, for example—which Mr. Gardiner evidently intends—would make a mockery of Canada's protest against the exclusion of our potatoes from the United States. Carried a little further, the protectionism of Mr. Gardiner (who is never tired of attacking Tory protectionism) would bring devastating reprisals from our foreign customers who are essential to the progress of our economic life.

And when Mr. Gardiner says there must be no competition with Canadian butter, no attempt to keep its price as low as possible because the Canadian market must be preserved for the Canadian producer, the Canadian consumer may well ask who is going to preserve him? Not Mr. Gardiner, anyway.

But all such contradictions in government policy can be understood when it is realized that Mr. Gardiner has long operated, for agricultural purposes, a kind of separate government of his own for which the rest of the government takes only a formal responsibility when it has to. It will have to if Mr. Gardiner refuses to admit any more New Zealand butter after the shipment now under way. It is, perhaps, time that the government of Canada entered into diplomatic relations with the government of Mr. Gardiner.

You Can Save A Life

EVIDENCE GIVEN AT AN INQUIRY into the death of an elderly Chinese, that no blood plasma was available to administer to the dying man, brings emphatically to public attention the need to support the Red Cross blood donor service.

Although Red Cross authorities, who have taken over the task of providing blood and plasma for hospital use throughout the province, state that if appealed to in the case under discussion they would have obtained the needed material from one source or another, the fact remains that supplies were so low that a critical emergency could not be avoided. Plasma is derived from whole blood, but Red Cross officials say so much of the blood is used directly for transfusions that an inadequate supply is left over for needed plasma production.

That is a direct challenge to every man and woman in this community. Although the news item may have dealt with a stranger, the next victim might be someone much closer in family ties. The blood donors' clinic being held today at Red Cross Headquarters, Fort Street, 1.30 to 4.30 and 7 to 9 p.m., gives an opportunity to put our good intentions into practice.

Looking For Tin Pan Alley

IT HAS BEEN SAID, ON APPROPRIATE occasions, that every man has a novel in him. The meanest of us, the most obscure and pedestrian, can surely provide, within the bounds of our lifetime, sufficient material for an interesting tale. Some, indeed, could furnish volumes. A good many people, however, faced with this prospect, would hesitate and decline. Most of us would shrink from baring the hoarded secrets of our existence even to produce a best-seller. Not everybody wants to write a book—but everybody, at one time or another, has wanted to write a popular song.

It is not likely statistics have ever been computed on the point, and the census-takers appear to have overlooked it, but the number of thwarted, unpublished, or, generally speaking, musically stillborn songwriters must approximate the total population of this continent. How many men, walking home from the office, shovelling coal in the basement, doodling on a telephone pad or waiting for a late luncheon appointment, have passed the time in mentally seeking a few lines of rhyme which might—who knows?—turn out to be a song hit? How many men, having last week attended a road show performance, or last night dozed by the radio, have startled themselves by seemingly stumbling on a sparkling bit of tune or a catchy musical phrase?

The pleasure of such melodic discoveries is never quite dissipated by hearing someone whistling the same tune on the next corner. By a curious mental twisting, it persists despite such setbacks. Someday, surely, some combination of notes must pop into mind that will be entirely original, immediately popular, and lead eventually to fame, fortune and heady prestige in the world of the juke box.

Chips Off The Old Brock

By DAVID BROCK

FEW things in the way of minor pleasures are more satisfactory than good solid replies to famous poems. And this being Burns' Night, I think the time is ripe for reprinting a well-turned reply to "A Man's a Man for A' That." It was written by Shirley Brooke or Brooks, I forget which. . . . I believe he was editor of Punch around 1880 or so. I am quoting only from memory, and I know

I have got one word wrong, but I'd be surprised if I had more than two wrong. Here it is:

Here's luck to honest poverty;
It brings respect and a' that.
But honest wealth's a better thing:
We dare be rich for a' that.
For a' that and a' that,
Their fustian talk and a' that,
A man may have a ten-pound note
And be a brick for a' that.

What though on soup and fish we dine,
Wear evening togs and a' that?
A man may like good meat and wine,
Nor be a knave for a' that.
For a' that and a' that,
Their spoonery cant and a' that,
A gentleman, however clean,
May have a heart for a' that.

The King may make a belted knight,
A marquis, duke, and a' that;
But if the title's earned all right,
Old England's fond of a' that.
For a' that and a' that,
Their jealousy and a' that,
A name that tells of service done
Is worth the wear for a' that.

Then let us pray that come it may,
And come it will for a' that,
That common sense may take the place
Of common cant and a' that.

For a' that and a' that,
Who cackles trash and a' that,
Or be he laird or be he low,
The man's an ass for a' that.

THIS may be a little rough on Burns, whose basic meaning is fairly plain and fairly sensible and sometimes needs saying, though with less sweeping rhetoric. But it is not at all rough on those who use Burns as a final argument and a kind of egalitarian Bible of deal-levelism. And even if it is rough, it is not only enjoyable, but makes a pretty test of those who laugh at the rhyme and those who get angry.

THE DEVIL'S ADVOCATE

EVEN I, in my small way, have written a reply or two to Burns. You may recall his Address to the De'il. Since the Devil seldom gets a fair hearing from Burns or anyone else, I'd like to print here a word of my own on his behalf:

The De'il's Reply to Robert Burns
Aiblins I micht seem unco hard,
Dear Robbie, Rab, or Scotia's Bard.
The brunstone loch I'll not discard:
Puir Hottentots
Maun tak the bath, and whiles I'm gar'd
Include the Scots.

But hootsawa, I do my duty.
Your holes and pits and brunstone cootie
And hired bogies, black and sooty,
Are just my tools.
They'll never say about auld Cloutie
He burst the rules.

I'll tak the low road, ye the high;
Ye needna catch auld Cloutie's eye.
Gudeakes, I'm busy here, forbye,
Tae wait what tumbles.
I tak what comes . . . that's no so sly,
Despite your grumbles.

If I invite ye, dinna get
Sae frichtit, fashit, and sair upset.
Just say ye verra much regret
Ye maun be going.
Cloutie's nae chap to press a debt
That isna owing.

IT MAY be objected that the word "going" three lines up, there, should be either "ganging" or "gaeing." But for one thing it wouldn't have rhymed with "owing." For another, I have simplified both spelling and vocabulary up yonder, in the reader's best interests. . . . as Burns himself often did, thanks be.

I think I have pointed out in this column before, in self defence against angrily buzzing Scots, that my own children are more than half Scots, since their mother's four grandparents were born in Scotland and were Coultards, Kilgours, Robinsons, and Thorburns, and since I have a bit of Forbes blood myself. So spare my pretty chickens and their dam, if not me. Also, my father once commanded the Seaforth's of Canada, and two of my brothers held commissions in that regiment.

AND then, too, I've enjoyed Burns as much as most Scots and more than some, for I read him for the sheer poetry and wit, and not in search of propaganda, patriotism, or an excuse for a roaring party. Dinners, though glorious things, are not the only way of having "what mony a lassie had langsyne: a nicht wi' Burns." That quotation belongs to the late Professor Raleigh, himself part Scots and all the better for that, so never let it fash you, my bilbies.

I HAVE never made jokes about haggis which has always seemed a good sensible pudding to me, and fit for several dinners a year, not just one. It wasn't I but my wife who threw a half-eaten haggis out the car window at the corner of Fourth Avenue and Alma Road in Vancouver some years ago, where it may one day be found by a baffled geologist. The haggis needs no defence. . . . and the first man who says "Any more than a skunk does" must answer to me. It doesn't even need the tin can in which you can buy it.

MODERN PLAINNESS

Failing to see any artistic look in any of these buildings going up today, I hate to think what the Parliament Buildings, the Empress Hotel, and several of the other buildings would look like if they were built at this time. The present post office is very artistic, but from the look of it, the new post office will be just plain cement. Are there no artistic buildings these days?

ABANDONED KITTENS

The very realistic cartoon "Life's Darkest Moment," of "the kitten that was left to live off the land," picturing a forlorn kitten in a winter scene at the door of a deserted country house, brings home to us once more the urgency of educating people to have their unwanted kittens and cats put to sleep in a humane way, and not abandon them to a lingering death of starvation.

Although the Victoria S.P.C.A. have been doing their utmost to teach people to have unwanted kittens humanely disposed of, there are still a very large number left behind when their owners move to a new house, or else taken to some country place and abandoned there to whatever fate may await them. A campaign for more humane treatment for these little creatures might save a great deal of suffering for them.

OLD AGE PENSIONS

Re the article in The Daily Times, Jan. 8, on "Pensions Must Be Paid For." Yes, of course pensions must be paid for. Are they not being paid for every time the public make a purchase?

It's alarming so many writers howling how much it will cost the government for old age pensions and showing such daring figures.

Many of these aged people (please remember) did not make enough to live on let alone save much. Many of these old pioneers had a struggle to live and still have. What little if any they could save has been swallowed up long ago with the exorbitant prices which have prevailed for some time. Taxes and taxes on anything and everything. . . .

Recent news announced the old age pensions will come next year. "Really, how wonderful."

It should go through immediately, retroactive to last September, before some of the old folks leave for good.

It's up to the press to clamor for an early security, and it's the earnest wish of this

OBSERVER.

SINGLE TRANSFERABLE VOTE

The idea of a single transferable vote, as advocated by some factions in both the Liberal and Conservative Parties, is, in my opinion, undemocratic and can only be regarded as a "device." The more one interferes with the democratic exercise of the franchise, the more difficulty accrues.

That the proposed system is advanced for the purpose of putting the Provincial Liberal Party back into power is clearly shown by the fact that none of those who have supported it within the ranks of the party suggest that it has sufficient merit to be applied federally, where, for the time being at least, the party in power is in no serious danger of being replaced. What the Progressive Conservative Party can gain by it is something I cannot envisage.

The democratic conception of the exercise of the franchise is to select the person whom the voter wishes to represent him or her in either of the parliaments. Why confine it to a single transferable vote? Why not go the "whole hog" and make it a popularity contest and vote for say 20 candidates in any given riding? Why not vote against the person that you do not wish to be your representative in parliament?

The defect in the whole idea is that to make it effective legislation would have to be passed to avoid what is known as "plumping."

Like Mr. Wismer, it is my considered opinion that there is no pretext whatever for party government in British Columbia or in any other province, but I do not agree with him in the method he proposes to suggest to the Legislature. If the Coalition is to be ended, the honest and democratic method would be for each party to choose its own candidates in every riding and "fight it out." Under the democratic system, it is not the majority of votes that counts, but the plurality. In other words, if John Jones gets more votes than Tom Smith and Bill Brown, he is the properly elected member, having been supported by more voters than his opponents.

Should Canada Go It Alone?

IT'S A GOOD many years ago since a man began dreaming of the vast new trade route that would open if the waters of the St. Lawrence River and the Great Lakes could be made navigable throughout to ocean-going vessels. Such a scheme, to bring the Atlantic Ocean, in a sense, into the heart of the North American continent, was comparable only to spanning the great land mass with steel rails. Canada performed the latter feat, as British Columbia's membership of Confederation attests, but the other project has remained, until now, still a dream.

Forming in part as it does a section of the international border, any major development of the river, either for navigation or water power, necessitates joint action between Canada and the United States. Thus it was that some 20 years ago the St. Lawrence seaway plan was given concrete recognition through the medium of a treaty between the two countries. But although Ottawa has stood ready to implement it, and its various subsequently revised drafts, the United States Senate has never seen fit to ratify the proposal.

NEW IMPORTANCE

Today, however, the whole concept takes on a new importance and a new urgency that may force implementation. So vital has it become, in fact, that Canada is now seriously considering the feasibility of carrying out the plan alone, without financial aid or more than formal co-operation from our neighbor.

Three great factors have brought the idea to a head: power needs, the discovery of vast iron deposits in the Ungava region of the Labrador peninsula, and defence considerations.

In the face of the ever-growing demand for power from New York, Quebec and Ontario industries, development of the more than 3-million h.p. they would share by harnessing the St. Lawrence provides an obvious solution to what will become an increasingly serious shortage. Already these three areas are feeling the pinch. The plan offers them huge blocks of power at an unusually low cost.

The value of the Labrador iron discoveries will depend in large part on the cost at which ore can be kept moving in a constant stream from the northern hinterland to the great American steel refining centres south of the Lakes. Under present conditions, the bulk of such shipments would have to undergo expensive trans-shipment by rail from Montreal to Prescott.

DEFENCE POTENTIAL

Even cursory consideration of the power and traffic factors, including the almost unlimited possibilities inherent in opening the great Canadian west to Atlantic shipping, makes obvious the defence potential involved in the scheme.

What of the cost of such an undertaking? Recent estimates rate the complete project, carried out jointly by Canada and the United States, as a $902-million job. Canada's share of this would amount to $420-million. But as an all-Canadian project, we would face a bill of $617-million.

For a country of this size that would be a formidable burden. But when it is seen that two-thirds of the go-it-alone cost would apply to hydro development which would return large revenues, and that the plan would give Canada complete control of the new 27-foot seaway channel (routed through Canadian territory instead of American), the benefits assume similarly vast proportions.

Ups And Downs

By BRIAN A. TOBIN

"NOT content," said the Elevator Man, "with going down to the bottom of the sea to gawk at the finny residents and upset their lives, I see where there's a plan on foot to build an aquarium, and bring the fishes up to look at us. Of course, the idea is worded differently. It's put out as a scheme to let people look at the fish, but obviously nobody would want to do that. No, the whole thing is a disguised effort to show off in front of the deep-sea fish, the only creatures left that we think we can impress. The suggestion—that tourists would come here to look at the tanks of swimming life will be recognized for what it really is—an attempt to lure the fish up with promises that they will get an opportunity to see the tourists—plaid caps, hand-painted ties, summer dresses and all. Mind the step!"

"The sad fact is," said the Elevator Man, "that we haven't really got much here that would attract a fish and make him want to leave the peace and calm of his ocean bottom. Any fish in the tanks, peering out at the fishy faces peering in at him, would think us a sad lot. Obviously suffering from nerves, chewing gum rapidly but without nourishment, hurrying through the exhibits for fear of finding a parking ticket on the car outside, talking incessantly of high prices, war threats, material shortages and kindred troubles, we'd present a poor picture of life on the earth's surface. And if the fish ever caught sight of a few newspaper headlines sticking out of someone's pocket, the judgment would be confirmed. Going down!"

"Frankly," said the Elevator Man, "I think they ought to drop the whole idea. If the fish are the only branch of creation that hasn't caught on to us yet, let's keep 'em that way. Let's cling to the hope that somewhere on the globe there are still millions of creatures that don't regard us with amused contempt, even if it's only because they don't yet know about us."

A Groundhog Should Know Better

Montreal Star

IN SPITE of all the evidence of the best naturalists to the contrary we insist on believing that upon Candlemas Day, which falls on or about the second of February, the groundhog comes out of his winter habitation underground, observes the state of the weather, governs himself accordingly, and upon what he does the nature of the weather for the succeeding two months or so largely, if not entirely, depends.

That is our unalterable conviction, founded upon the faith of our forefathers, and upon some observation of groundhogs in our youth. It is not to be shaken by debunking peepers and pryers or even by common sense. We accordingly resent the action of a groundhog reported from the township of Hullet, in the County of Huron and province of Ontario that was observed to be on the prowl one day last week. The impulse of every farmer to blast every groundhog he sees with a shotgun is understandable, though regrettable. In this instance we can almost deplore the fact that the farmer missed.

Groundhogs, like the rest of us, should not violate tradition or seek to subvert the courses of nature. Candlemas Day is Groundhog Day and any groundhog that, being slept out, gets up and goes wandering around ahead of time and—who knows?—thus letting us in for weeks and weeks of blizzards deserves to get come up with.

Talk Scoring Pools Rouses Farmers' Ire

By GRAHAM TROTTER

CALGARY (CP)—Canadian farmers have no inclination to sell their wheat on the open market if Wednesday's session of the annual Canadian Federation of Agriculture convention was any yardstick of their opinion.

This was evidenced in the heated reaction of delegates to arguments advanced for the open futures market by Dr. J. L. McDougall, economist at Queen's University. They were given during a CBC national farm broadcast recorded for Monday night and staged before the convention audience.

The farmers barely managed to control their tempers during the recording when Dr. McDougall said arguments against the open market "stunk" and that the wheat pools had operated for many years "not on their real value to you, but by frightening you with this bogey man (low farm prices in depression years)."

He was spared constant interruption, and undoubtedly some lusty booing, because complete silence had been ordered until the end of the broadcast.

Dr. McDougall, who said he was born on a farm, "escaped" to catch a plane, but not before some delegates had delivered scathing denunciations of his views. They told him that farmers know more about agriculture than economists and that they (the farmers) should be left to decide their own affairs.

Cheque Too Small, Esquimalt Says

Esquimalt's long-awaited federal grant has arrived. A cheque from the comptroller of the treasury arrived at the Municipal Hall Tuesday but at next council meeting a protest will be made that it is too small.

The cheque is made out for the sum of $19,175. Reeve A. I. Thomas said today he had been led to believe the grant would be between $35,000 and $40,000, until last month when the Times learned from Fisheries Minister R. W. Mayhew the figure would be closer to $20,000.

COURT BACKS TAX PROTEST

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) A federal jury decided Wednesday that Vivien Kellems had not acted "willfully" in refusing to withhold United States income taxes from her employees' pay envelopes. It returned a verdict entitling her to recovery of most of the money seized by the government as penalties for defying the law.

Miss Kellems, long an opponent of the withholding tax, was happy at the verdict. Government lawyers said they probably would appeal.

Speaker Still Awaiting Word On Death

The provincial government hasn't been notified officially yet of the death last November of Cmdr. Charles Beard who represented Esquimalt riding in the Legislature.

Hon. Nancy Hodges, Speaker of the Legislature, said today that technically speaking there is no vacancy in the Legislature as far as the government is concerned.

She must be notified in writing of the death of a member by at least two other members, or during a session of the Legislature one member "in his place" can make the official notification.

Because Mrs. Hodges has not been advised, Esquimalt could be without representation for at least another eight months.

THE HOME GARDEN

Mexican Sunflower Among New Annuals

By HILDA BEASTALL

While there are numerous flowering plants which have been lost to cultivation, and hundreds which have been forgotten because better forms have been bred, we still eagerly look for something new and different.

And so, with the publication of each list of all-American Selections, I appreciate the new vegetables—but read the flower descriptions first.

This year only two flowering plants, both easily grown annuals, merited the cherished recommendation.

A new Tithonia, carrying the variety name of "Torch," is a bush form of the Mexican Sunflower.

Torch is described as the same fiery red as the variety Fireball, but its flowers are borne on a four-foot greyish-green bushy plant whose habit is considered more desirable for the garden than its forerunner.

To me, Fireball has been a most brilliant orange-red, and according to Ridgeway's color standard, rates as a "Grenadine red."

Torch is classed as a tender annual which withstands summer heat and appears, from test reports, to be free from all diseases.

The flowers, held on straight, wiry stems, are three to four inches across and resemble a single dahlia with a golden centre disc. They are good for cutting and will make striking arrangements.

Seed is now listed in the catalogues. Sowing for inside should be made about March, or outside when the soil has warmed. Plants should commence flowering in July or August in this latitude.

'Flu Epidemic Near Peak Carrying Off Weak, Aged

Millions Ail, Thousands Die; Britain And Ireland Hardest Hit; Vaccine Not Much Use

By ALVIN STEINKOPF

LONDON (AP)—Millions in Europe are sneezing and running temperatures, and some thousands—most the feeble and aged—have died in an influenza epidemic which appears to be reaching its peak in a number of countries.

The United Kingdom and Ireland seems hardest hit by the highly-infectious disease, which sweeps through communities with startling suddenness, laying low a large proportion of the population.

Rent Control In Quebec Continues

OTTAWA (CP)—Rent ceilings applied by federal controls will be maintained until Aug. 1 by the bill laid before the Legislative Assembly Wednesday by the Quebec Government. Federal controls expire at the end of April.

The Quebec plan will provide: Maintenance of controlled rents at their present levels until Aug. 1.

Regulation of rates after Aug. 1 by agreement between tenant and landlord or by judgment of the provincial rentals administrators.

Revision of rates at present uncontrolled and "abusive." A ban on evictions until Aug. 1 to permit re-negotiation of leases under the provincial system of control.

Ball, Ball, Who's Got The Ball?

Victoria College intermediates and Chinese Students went down like tenpins after a multiple bump-jump scramble at the Vic High gym last night. What happened to the ball is anybody's guess, but College's O'Shea

(No. 3) seems to have an idea. Chinese Students swamped the young College squad, 50 to 18, and will carry a 32-point lead into the second tilt of their two-game, total-point, intermediate A basketball series.

COLEMAN'S COLUMN

By JIM COLEMAN

There's a valid excuse for mentioning Harry Lillis "Bing" Crosby on the sports pages because, after all, he is part-owner of the Pittsburgh Pirates and, in the days of his misguided youth, he owned race horses. On top of that, a few seasons back, he presented a streamlined water-wagon to the football squad of Gonzaga University in Spokane, Washington.

We were twiddling the dials of the jolly old wireless the other evening when we heard an announcement to the effect that the film industry presently is observing the Twentieth Anniversary of Crosby's emergence as a top entertainer.

According to our own files, Crosby has been close to the top for more than 20 years. It was in the summer of 1929 that we stumbled on a Columbia recording of "The Blackbirds and the Bluebirds Got Together." The vocal group which made this recording was "described as 'Paul Whiteman's Rhythm Boys.' If you turned over the record, the same group gurgled a pleasant little ditty called 'Louise,' and, in a bit of musical chit-chat, the baritone was identified as one, 'Bing.'"

Canaries Use Gravel Too

At the outset, Crosby's voice had a rather, charming, raffish quality which gave the impression that he had a small load of gravel or shale stuck in his throat. Far from detracting from his popularity, this huskiness made him a star and—then as now—he was widely imitated.

The most formidable of his imitators (conscious or unconscious) in those days was the late Russ Columbo. Members of the Crosby clique were moved to passionate rage whenever they heard Columbo imitating their hero.

The most violent of these critics probably was Mr. Charles Counsell, a former member of the Winnipeg Tammany Tigers' rugby football club. Mr. Counsell came home from a hunting trip one evening, and switched on the radio. Immediately, the voice of Russ Columbo filled the room. Mr. Counsell simply picked up his double-barrelled fowling piece and blew the radio to smithereens.

Typical Hollywood Stinker

Crosby's first picture was a stinker, the production of which must have strained the worst resources of Hollywood. He was cast as a pretty-pretty forest ranger who burst into song on the slightest provocation. The smaller animals, such as rabbits, squirrels and deer fled from him into the deepest forests and only the cougars and sturdier livestock stood their ground.

Crosby's adventures in the horse-racing business weren't disastrous for a man of his wealth, but they were singularly disillusioning. In partnership with Lin Howard, he bred, raised and raced a great number of steeds which, unfortunately, couldn't outspeed a self-respecting snail. He recouped these losses, however, by canny investments in such profitable race tracks as Del Mar and Hollywood Park.

The Crosby name long has been known on the sport pages for his consuming interest in golf. Whatever, for instance, became of his whilom golfing partner, Mysterious Montague?

Toupee And Bay Window Boy

The reason that Crosby has lasted all these years is, as one New York critic put it: "Because he sings every song as if it was the best song he ever heard in his life."

The truth of it is, too, that Crosby was a product of the best era of popular American music. The song-writers apparently exhausted all their possibilities in those years and now—when you turn on the radio—you discover that many of the current hits were written 25 years ago, or more.

H-m-m-n! So Crosby's been around for more than 20 years, eh! And he's still going strongly while the Sinatras and the Laines and the Damones enjoy a brief vogue and then disappear. The old boy must have something besides a toupee and a protruding stomach.

H-m-m-n! Let's get out those old records and listen to "Blackbirds and Bluebirds," or "I Found a Million-Dollar Baby," or "Pul-lease."

Altogether now, boys—let's rattle one down the canyon. "When the boo-boo-blue of the night meets the gold of the day boo-boo-boo... someone waits for me... boo-boo-boo."

CY WALLIS SHAMED INTO SETTING FIVEPIN RECORD

Cy Wallis couldn't stand the ribbing. The city's top fivepin bowler for many seasons, Cy recently was married to May White, who is just about the best woman fivepin bowler in town.

On Monday May went out and set a record fivepins score for women of 955. Last night in the Commercial Fivepin League, Cy proved who was boss by spilling a 1,004 total.

It was Wallis' best score and a new record for the Commercial League. Harold Gent held the old mark of 991. The silly mark of 1,025 was made by Bill Marshall in 1933.

Wallis' previous high until last night was 999. His game scores were 290, 344 and 370.

Dates Advanced For City Cage Playoffs

At a special meeting of the Victoria and District Basketball Association held at the Victoria High School gym last night, the men's senior B playoffs were advanced in order to name a champion for island playoffs by Feb. 3.

Three men's senior B games are scheduled for Saturday night at Vic High. All six teams will be in action, playing second games in the three two-game playoff series.

In the first game, set for 7, Shamrocks will have an eight-point lead over Fletchers; in the second game, at 8, Vikings will try to hold their seven-point lead over Elks, and Arrow Fur-

Leafs Finding Chores Difficult

COLOGNE, Germany (BUP)—Canada's Lethbridge Maple Leafs today awakened to the fact that their bid for world ice hockey supremacy will not be a walk-over.

The Leafs, who had toured Germany almost undefeated in a warm-up for the international contest in a few weeks, just managed to edge the Preussen Krefeld squad last night, 5 to 4.

Vics Spank Sailors In Island Junior Ice Tilt

Victoria Vics, Island Junior Hockey League leaders, put on their scoring clothes last night and nearly wore them out on their thumped Navy, 9 to 2. The Vics played the type of hockey for which they are best suited—fast break, short passing and a minimum of rough-house.

With Art Green and Archie Courtall scoring hat-tricks, the Vics had it all their own way, though the Tars were not as bad as the score might indicate.

The first period was a defensive frame with both clubs checking tenaciously.

GOAL-A-MINUTE

In a space of five minutes and 10 seconds, the teams scored five goals, Vics getting three and the Navy counting their only scores of the game.

In spite of last night's drubbing, Navy have high hopes for the future. Last night they unveiled five new players and it is reported they have two new candidates for the net-minding job. In addition, Roy Derry's injured shoulder has improved sufficiently to allow him to play again.

PRELIMINARIES

The juveniles produced two low-scoring games as preliminaries. Maroons and Senators tied 2 to 2.

Vikings Show Winning Style

That's Bernie Clarkson of Victoria College sinking a push shot for two of the 12 points he scored in Students' 51 to 44 basketball win over Elks at the Vic High gym last night. Teammate Bill Naylor, background, was high man for the night with 19 points. Going for the rebound is Elks' Bentley. All six city senior B cage teams will see action Saturday evening in second games of the three series.

Leafs Maintain Jinx Over Habs

Though their National Hockey League meetings are usually marked by fist fights and plenty of hard bumping, Toronto Maple Leafs have a distinct fondness for Montreal Canadiens this season. And well they should.

In the nine games against their "cousins" so far, the Maple Leafs have won seven, tied one and lost one.

Toronto added its latest victory last night, edging the slowed-down Flying Frenchmen 4 to 3. Canadiens have yet to win a game on Toronto ice this season in five attempts.

The win pulled the second-place Leafs to within eight points of the leading Detroit Red Wings and left their opponents in the No. 3 spot, 15 points behind Leafs.

Summary follows:

Royals-Eagles Keep Rolling

Portland Stops Seattle; Face Cougars On Friday

New Westminster Royals and Portland Eagles continued their unbeaten streaks in the Pacific Coast Hockey League race last night.

The Royals, who now have gone 10 games without a defeat, were tied 2 to 2 by the third-place Tacoma Rockets, when Doug Toole of the Rockets slapped in the tying counter with less than a minute to play.

Coast League Attendance Up; Victoria Down

SEATTLE (AP)—A reported increase of 7,494 paid admissions brought smiles to three Pacific Coast Hockey League clubs Wednesday, but balancing frowns from three others.

For the first 126 games of the season the six teams drew 352,949 fans, compared to 343,455 a year ago.

Portland gained 13,353 and New Westminster 12,318 for the biggest jumps in attendance.

Vancouver increased 5,732. Seattle, which was without ice for several weeks at the start of the season, lost 16,438.

Tacoma is down 6,309 compared to last season and Victoria's attendance is off 1,162.

IT'S MY VIEW

By BILL WALKER, Sports Editor.

A trip to Vancouver with the Cougars results in Part II of the drama "Maelstrom Murph."

Murph (Chamberlain) is the coach of the Vancouver Canucks, but it has been intimated that he is more famous at the moment for replacing Babe Pratt in the "black type" department of the Vancouver press. The result being that

Walker

Pratt has now barred Vancouver reporters from the New Westminster dressing-room. All of which makes for good copy.

But back to the drama which had its opening performance here a week ago Tuesday. This week Murph was playing before a supposedly friendly house.

Act I: Referee Eddie Powers (remember him? He hasn't appeared in Victoria since Dec. 22) drops the puck and the game is away; and two minutes later so are the Cougars with a two-goal lead. Murph is standing up, exhorting his charges in no uncertain terms, but feeling sorry for his "own baby." Kevin Conway, Murph allows the celebrated "Crusher" to sit alone at the end of the pew (where incidentally he stays the rest of the game). Owner Coley Hall is not to be seen.

Gumming Up The Works

Act II: Powers whistles a penalty against George Defelice (this is the same George Defelice who is featured in the Vancouver program as being the "killer"). Defelice protests, and Murph, quick to take his cue, rises to the incident. As a matter of fact Murph rises so high that soon he is doing a tight-rope act down the six-inch board that separates the penalty box from the ice, meanwhile informing Mr. Powers that Defelice isn't really rough and doesn't deserve such a fate as a penalty. (It says in the program that Defelice doesn't enjoy rough stuff but does it because of his mercenary attitude towards hockey.)

While performing on the eatwalk Murph suffers an accident which temporarily brings a halt to his castigation of Mr. Powers. In fact, he almost loses his teeth, he is gumming so violently. A quick swallow, a deft flick of the tongue, a pirouette and Murph's brief balancing act is over. There is some applause but it is rather spotty as the act is overplayed. Hall has not yet made his appearance.

A Hammy Performance

Act III: It's now the third period and the Cougars are still leading by one goal; but Mr. Powers wants to make it closer so he sends Joe Lepine and Roger Leger over to sit in the proximity of Murph. But Murph is cagey. He doesn't attempt to walk the plank in front of the Cougars.

However, he decides that Hee Highton is wearying and needs a rest. So he calls Highton from the ice. This doesn't work too well as Bob Frampton finds it relatively simple to score in the open net.

But Murph still wants to take the lead. He has loused up all his lines so far and must make one final attempt to win back the house which by now is moving towards the lobby. So he pulls Highton from the stage again. This time Leger directs the puck into the net.

Murph sinks slowly back into his seat and finally locks the door to the players' box. Still Hall is noticeable by his absence.

Re-enter Mr. Pratt

The house is slowly disintegrating and there is little applause for Murph. Rather his performance is classed as strictly second rate.

Act IV: Scene: The Vancouver dressing-room. Picture, if you will, Murph nervously dragging on a cigarette while trying to explain to a member of the Vancouver press just what was supposed to happen, and the Vancouver press in return trying not to show too much disrespect for Murph's position.

Who knows? Perhaps Murph may decide to close the dressing-room to press usurpers in the future if Pratt regains the heavy type. At last, Pratt can prove his point. The Royals are in first place, while the Canucks... well... they do play here again next week.

Hall? He doesn't show at all.

Town Planning Essential, Says Forrest Shaw

"Municipal councils are notoriously bad long-term town planners. Their members can rarely see beyond the date of the next election," said Forrest L. Shaw to a crowded meeting of the Victoria Real Estate Board Wednesday.

A Town Planning Commission as directed by the Town Planning Act was absolutely essential to the well-being of the city, he said. "The commission should, in dealing with various applications, keep the public interest before it at all times, rather than the interest of the individual."

"If a war comes, we in Victoria may be in the front line," he said. "It may be deemed necessary to evacuate Victoria in a hurry to cushion areas such as the Saanich Peninsula. Our highways are not sufficient to carry the load."

Herbert Brown, thanking Mr. Shaw for his address on behalf of his fellow realtors, said there was no aspect of municipal affairs in which real estate was more interested than in town planning, and he assured Mr. Shaw that they were very much in favor of a continuance of the commission with its good work.

Session To Decide Momentous Issues

M.P.'s Arriving To Face Problems Of War-Threat Economic Controls

By NORMAN M. MACLEOD

OTTAWA (BUP)—The nation's lawmakers started arriving today for the new session of Parliament which officials and observers alike are heralding as one of the most important in Canada's peacetime history.

Scheduled to impose the first wartime economy imposed on the Canadian people in peacetime, the coming session inevitably will answer the three big questions that most people from Newfoundland to British Columbia have tried to answer in advance. They are:

1. How deeply will the economic controls of the new government program cut into Canadians' daily lives?

2. How far will the next taxation program reach into the nation's pocketbook?

3. Of what nature will be the debate over foreign policy—the issue which will decide whether the ultimate fate of Canada is to be peace or war?

The situation looked like this on the economic front:

Source who should know hint frankly that the government's program of economic controls is going to be really formidable. It is a safe bet that on paper it will resemble nothing quite so much as the draft constitution for a totalitarian state—minus, of course, the police powers which are the authentic trade mark of a dictatorship.

But well-informed officials suggest that the controls' bark will be worse than their bite.

While the government intends to arm itself with all the authority it would need for any situation short of actual war—when the all-embracing War Measures Act would operate—it only intends to use its powers as it needs them. The controls will be permissive rather than mandatory, and the government will resort to them reluctantly rather than eagerly.

The administration has no enthusiasm for a policy of all-out regimentation. That is largely because the passing months are teaching cabinet ministers the difference between a cold war and a shooting war in respect to their very different effects on the people's temperament.

A cold war lacks military victories to reconcile people to economic sacrifices, and no casualty lists to steel them to greater effort and endurance of hardships on the home front. Grumbling is a first cousin to treason in a shooting war; but in a cold war it can snowball into widespread discontent, as witness the current mutterings nationwide against the rising cost of living.

The government quite naturally doesn't want to be under heavier punishment than it is necessary for it to absorb. Public protests against living costs already have it worried. It is not going to give additional offence unnecessarily by arbitrary and dictatorial behaviour which circumstances do, not specifically call for.

Therein lies the clue to the government's coming use of the control powers it proposes to get from Parliament. In any resort to them, so long as the cold war stays cold, the importance will be kept in mind of maintaining some measure of balance between the nation's civilian and war economies.

Salary Problem On Defence Workers

Who will help pay the salaries of four municipal co-ordinators and one for the unorganized territory is the next question facing the civil defence regional control board, Mayor Percy George said today.

He expressed pleasure at announcement of the provincial government that it would pay half the salary of the regional co-ordinator, but stated municipal co-ordinators responsible to the regional co-ordinator would also be needed.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

By OSWALD JACOBY

"Here is a question of percentage that has bothered us for some time," complains a New Orleans reader. "We think that it's your fault for putting ideas into our heads."

"West led three top diamonds, and South ruffed the third. He then led a heart to the king and returned a heart from dummy. East played a low heart, naturally enough, and South made the mistake of thinking."

"He had read one of your columns in which you stated that it was a good idea to expect an uneven break in cases of this sort, where an opponent had bid. Acting on your advice, he finessed the jack of hearts."

"The result was pretty sad. South lost two diamonds, a heart, and a spade. If he had put up the ace of hearts, he would have made his contract."

"How are you going to wriggle out of this one? Are you guilty or not?"

Guiltily, with an explanation. I probably did write a column once on the subject of whether or not to finesse with nine trumps. If one of the opponents has bid or shown unusual suit length, you should usually play him for a singleton-trump.

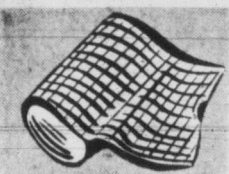

Mind you, I never said that the finesse will always work. That's the difference between a percentage play (usually succeeds) and a sure-fire play (always works).

Most important of all, I would never recommend playing this hand in the way described. South had only himself to blame for losing it.

The right play is to trump the third diamond and lead a heart to the king. Then trumps should be abandoned for the moment. Declarer should first cash the

The best remedy for lumbago, my friend tells me, is the one you happen to be using when the lumbago suddenly lifts and drifts away. He ought to know. Every winter he's stooped over like a marbles champion. He's tried so many sure-cures he thinks he ought to be put in a drug store window, there are that many medicines inside him.

My friend has a healthy respect for lumbago. It hits him so fast, for no apparent reason, that he thinks a scantling has dropped across the middle of his back. When he lands on the floor, he's afraid to move. It hurts so much. But he's developing a certain wry humor from the advice he receives.

THERE'S SOME merit, he says, in the brown wrapping paper treatment. It's fairly simple. The patient is stretched out on his bed, face downward, and ordinary brown paper is spread over his back. Then the patient's wife goes over the paper with a hot iron. If the paper has been torn and the patient forgets his lumbago temporarily. The same thing happens when she irons on beyond the paper. Still, my friend thinks the application of heat helps to ease the pain, provided there's a wrapper between him and the hot iron.

Plasters have given him relief, too, through the warmth they generate. But they can be sticky.

The big red belt doesn't appeal to him much. Once a man starts wearing that equipment, he keeps it on. It becomes part of him. And red belts look funny on a man in swimming.

THERE DOESN'T seem to be any end to the number of potions a lumbago case is urged to try. A teaspoonful of Epsom's salts in hot water every morning before breakfast is the most common. Even with that, my friend has retained his bad back.

Now he's interested in a new recipe. It was given to him by an enthusiastic commercial fisherman who has patients, also commercial fishermen, who will swear, and quite picturesquely, to its powers. The preparation hasn't all the eeriness of the stuff Macbeth's witches concocted. It isn't druidical, with herbs picked at the full of the moon behind the shadow of an upright rock. But there's a certain mysticism to it.

The basic ingredient is devil's club root. To get it you hire a Drive-Yourself car and hit along the Renfrew Road. The car rental costs you $12. You take with you a shovel, a pick, a block and tackle, and another guy to do the digging. Lumbago patients don't dig so well.

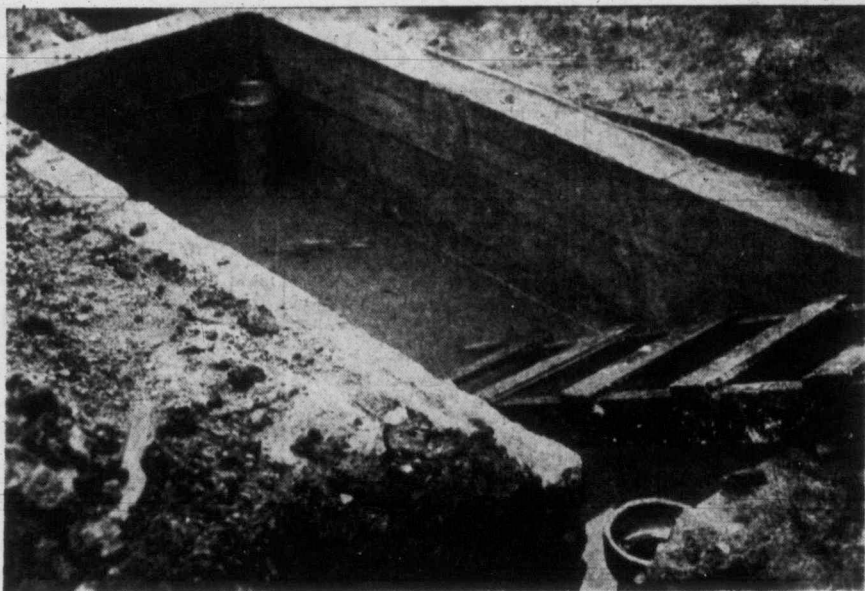

THEN, IF YOU know what the devil's club looks like and can find one, you have the other guy dig down to expose the root. It's hard work. The roots go so deep there are six North Koreans holding onto the other end. To beat them, the guy who's digging stops for a while and puts a line around the root, hooks it to the block and tackle that is fastened high on an adjoining tree, and then goes back to his shovel. While he's excavating, the lumbago case puts his weight on the block and tackle and eventually something gives. It may be the patient's back, or it may be the root.

If it's the root, the party puts it in the back of the Drive-Yourself car ($12 round trip) and heads for town. A fastidious person will wash some of the dirt off the root, chop it up in small pieces and toss them into a fishboat deck bucket. It's gotta be a deck bucket.

WITH WATER added, the business is brewed over a slow fire for two or three hours and is ready for serving. Doses are a glass or two a day.

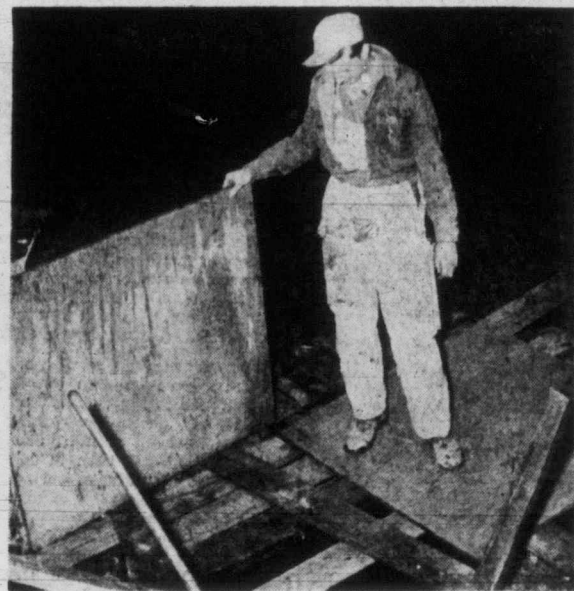

In a couple of week's time, the brewer claims, the patient is a new man.

My friend's more than interested. He has a deck bucket. He thinks probably the magic won't suffer if he uses his own car instead of a Drive-Yourself for the journey to the Renfrew Road. He's surreptitiously planning to wash all the dirt of the devil's club root, being a bit finicky, and assumes that if there are any incantations required during the concocting, he's been a commercial fisherman himself and knows the right words.

Boy's Drowning Starts Campaign For Citizens Of Greater Victoria To Cover Death-Traps

In Saanich, Victoria Daily Times investigators found this partially-filled septic tank, one of possibly hundreds in area where child could easily drown.

Rawcliffe demonstrates strength of temporary covering. Such action will prevent further tragedies.

Junior Chamber
Demands Action

By ROY THORSEN

Hundreds of potential death-traps for children are scattered throughout Greater Victoria.

Times cameraman Irving Strickland and I learned this today during a tour of the city in which we found scores of uncovered water-filled excavations for septic, fuel oil and gas tanks.

The survey was sparked by the death Tuesday night of 3½-year-old Ronald Mein, 1143 Lyall, in a 10 by 6 foot oil tank excavation two blocks from his home.

Police and civic officials in the past have repeatedly warned of the dangers of these water-filled excavations. Alarmed at the ever-present threat, the Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce has joined in the protest. It will demand the four municipalities of the Greater Victoria area enact and enforce by-laws to prevent repetition of the Mein death.

In the meantime, some citizens have already contacted city police, pointing out "danger spots." Police found owners eager to co-operate by covering the excavations. It is the hope of police that citizens will continue to bear this in mind when there is a heavy rainfall.

"It is just as much a danger to your own children as to those of neighbors who might wander on to the property," one person pointed out.

Troublesome Pumps Leave Ship With List

A deepsea skipper has to keep his eye on things.

With that axiom in mind, Capt. Joseph Andrews, master of the British freighter Maple Hill, decided he had better maintain a check on the list of his vessel, caused by pump trouble.

In his cabin, the stocky, quiet-spoken captain hung a bit of fish cord with a hook on the end. Looped over the hook was an old pipe cleaner.

It might not have been an engineering masterpiece, but Capt. Andrews could see with a glance at his makeshift plumbline if the tilt of his Quebec-built vessel had increased.

The Maple Hill was having the troublesome pumps repaired at V.M.D.'s outer wharf today, and is expected to head seaward tonight.

$300 Damage When Car Hits Parked Machine

About $300 damage was caused at 11.30 Wednesday night when a car driven by Robert Roy Newton, 667 Ralph, crashed into the parked car of John Daniel Laharty, H.M.C.S. Naden.

According to the R.C.M.P. highway patrol Laharty's car had apparently run out of gas and stalled on the Island Highway near the E. & N. track and Highway Sawmills at Langford, where the accident occurred. No one was injured.

IN COURT

Arnold and Pauline Frederickson, charged jointly with being the keepers of a bawdy house, were remanded to Jan. 29 for sentence. The woman had pleaded guilty earlier and Arnold changed his plea from not guilty to one of guilty. Magistrate H. C. Hall asked for a probation officer's report on them.

E. B. Taylor was sentenced to 10 days in jail from date of arrest on a charge of obtaining money by means of a worthless cheque. He pleaded guilty. "It is not your first conviction but the others are well in the past so I feel a moderate sentence will meet the case," said Magistrate Hall.

Appeal Court Wednesday dismissed the appeal of Patrick R. Mullen, who was convicted by an Assize Court jury here of rape and having carnal knowledge of a 15-year-old Victoria girl.

The court earlier allowed the appeal of Gordon Kravenia, Vancouver, convicted and sentenced to five years' imprisonment for possession of drugs, and quashed the conviction of Allister Minow, Vancouver, accused of stealing an automobile.

Questions Power Of Milk Board

Mr. Justice H. I. Bird reserved judgment Wednesday in the application of Harry Reifal, owner of the Bellavista Farms Ltd., for leave to appeal the B.C. Milk Board's recent price increase order.

The application, if granted, will be the initial legal step in a move to further increase Jersey milk prices. The basis of the appeal is that the Milk Board has not the jurisdiction under the Public Utilities Regulations Act to fix milk prices.

STREET LIGHTS REPAIRED

Municipal engineer R. Musgrave said today it was hoped all storm-damaged street lights in Oak Bay would be back in operation by Friday morning.

B.C. Electric crews have been busy repairing the damage suffered in recent high winds.

Town Planners Reconsidering Resignations

Before acting on City Council's request that they withdraw their resignations nine members of the Town Planning Commission, through Forrest L. Shaw, president, today asked to meet the council.

The object would be to explore possibility of establishing a better liaison with the city whereby the commission could "function satisfactorily," Mr. Shaw wrote to Mayor George.

He suggested the meeting discuss recognizing the commission as council's zoning committee to perform functions formerly carried out by the council's standing zoning committee.

Mr. Shaw listed several points for discussion.

Pickles' Stand Backed By Council

Central Saanich Council has supported the stand of Reeve Pickles that appraisal of the assets and liabilities of Saanich and Central Saanich should be done by an impartial firm.

Reeve Pickles believes $3,000 would be ample remuneration to Saanich for covering the new municipality from Elk Lake Fire Hall. The sum of $12,000 was set by the Saanich fire and water committee and will be recommended to the council.

In view of the present world situation, a network of all fire departments should be organized immediately, Reeve Pickles said.

Jury Asks Law On Waterhole Menace

Jury Urges Action To Force
Covering Of Excavations

Recommendation that a by-law be passed requiring excavations be covered to avoid the menace of water-filled holes was made by a coroner's jury which sat today to consider the drowning on Tuesday of 3½-year-old Ronald William Mein, son of C.P.O. and Mrs. Stewart Mein, 1143 Lyall.

The boy died after he fell into a water-filled excavation at the rear of a house, owned by John A. Mawer at 1169 Wychbury Avenue. Verdict of accidental death was returned.

Dr. E. C. Hart readily accepted the recommendation.

"It is a most unfortunate fact," the coroner observed, "that we never get by a year without one or more small children being drowned. With the amount of waterfront we have here, there is always the chance of a child being drowned in the harbor, but a case like this is slightly different."

Mr. Mawer, in his testimony to the jury, explained the excavation in his back yard was started in December and was being made to house an oil tank.

He said the hole was about 11 feet long, four feet wide and three feet deep. He said it was covered for a time but that he recently started to dig it deeper and had not covered it. He said it was at the rear of his house and could not be seen from the road. He said he thought it was out of the way of where anyone would walk.

He said the hole had filled with water since the heavy rains. Mr. Mawer told of finding Ronald's tricycle in his garage when he arrived home Tuesday evening. He said he paid little attention to it, however, as he believed it had been left there by a little boy next door.

C.P.O. Mein, father of the deceased, identified the tricycle as being his son's. He said the boy was expert at riding it but had always been told to stay around his own house with it.

Ever Take A Sniff Of Tea? Penny Did, And Liked It!

By PENNY SAVER

"Pull up a chesterfield chair and turn off the washing machine, Mabel, dear, I've got 10 hours' worth of chit-chat to squeeze into the next few minutes," said I, when I phoned my good friend this morning.

From here on I told Mabel how I'd stopped to look into a View Street shop window, was intrigued and wandered into the shop to find out more about it. Do you know, by the time I'd left that shop I'd sniffed everything from Smoky Lapsang tea and scented Orange Pekoe to anise seeds?

In the pekoes alone I sniffed, and marveled at pekoe itself, as well as broken, orange, flowery,

A recent arrival to the tea family was a fine... without a particle of dust to it... Ty Phoo tea tip, that is so economical to use. It's a $1.30 to buy, mind you, but a level teaspoon will suffice without adding the extra spoonful for the cup.

As for coffee, yikes! You should have got a whiff of the aroma from the coffee grinder. Almost sweeter than the first lily of spring and only 98 cents a pound. For the Jamaican blend, you'd pay $1.03 or for Brazilian and Jamaican mixture, $1.08. Guatemala contributes an excellent coffee at a pound for $1.18.

Sitting on the shelves were jars of herbs and spices that would keep a gourmet happy for the next 10 years! Majorine, thyme, five pennies an ounce, sage, poultry dressing, 10 pennies, Sweet Basil, same price, mint and parsley.

For the curried course on the menu there is the bright yellow powder selling at 85 pennies a pound. My goodness, 10 cents worth is enough for at least six usings.

YOUR BABY AND MINE

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

When we write about the advantages of breast-feeding, the emphasis is usually upon the benefits to the baby. These are so obvious that sometimes we forget that there are advantages to the parent, too.

One of these—and it is mentioned in all literature on this subject—is the emotion of love which grows in the parent when she nourishes her baby. The feeling that she alone is responsible for his health and well-being is an intoxicating one. Mrs. B. who is having this experience makes it plain to us how rich a one it is. "I am the mother of a six-month-old nursing baby," she writes. "This is my third child and I breast-fed the first and bottle-fed the second. I tried nursing the second child only for one week and as I did not seem to have enough milk and the doctor did not force the issue I put him on the bottle.

"While I was carrying this third baby I made up my mind I would nurse, even if I had to use bottles temporarily as a supplement. I have so often heard that excuse. 'I couldn't nurse because I was so nervous.' Now who isn't. Can you imagine a mother not being nervous who has two small children and a young baby?"

"But I have acquired some good habits since the baby is born. I have always been told that I had too little patience with the first two, as I am one of those lively persons. But, I find, that when I nurse I have to sit and relax. That's when I can really enjoy the baby. I look down at him and realize that he is mine.

Our leaflet No. 4, "Information for Nursing Mothers," may be had by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of this newspaper.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Reviewing Affair Pursued 10 Years, Unhappy Wife Admits She Is Caught In Vicious Circle; Needs Help

Dear Mary Haworth: For 10 years I have been in love with Bill, who is not my husband. In all fairness I must say that I have engineered the affair, pursuing him. He will not initiate a meeting, nor even call unless I call first. He is genuinely glad to hear from me, or to see me, yet is content to let months pass without contacting me. Suddenly, there I am again. I believe he is in love with me, but inasmuch as we both are neurotic emotionally, I wonder how a situation of this sort rights itself.

We both are unhappy with our mates. I have children but he has not. He is kind, gentle, upright and decent—everything that my husband is not. Jack (my husband) has been in endless scrapes in business and has broken almost every law of marriage and human decency. I think, I have blamed this on heredity, but there is little consolation in that. It was a serious transgression on his part that threw me against Bill—who has become an obsession with me.

I try hard to remember happy moments with my husband, but I can't. He is a good provider, but he never praises a thing I say or do or wear. I doubt that he has a friend in the world, yet I believe he is mentally superior to most people. Everyone and everything annoys him; he has no patience with anyone.

I deliberately fill my days to capacity, yet find too much time left over to think of Bill. I suppose I sound juvenile and immature; yet I have many friends who respect my advice, so why can't I handle my problem without appealing to you? Can you possibly understand such a complex person as I seem to be? Please try; for I do desperately need help. I only wish you could "reason" me into caring less for Bill.

B.A.

SEEKS ACCEPTANCE THAT ELUDES HER

Dear B.A.: Your attachment to Bill has been a safety device of sorts for you, to which you have turned time and again in emergency, with aim to prevent your precariously strained mind from cracking up. It is not the real man himself—such as he is—who is irresistible to you, as you think. Rather it is a suggestive quality of "complete understanding acceptance" that his gentle behavior symbolizes to you, which appeals to you as sanctuary when you most need emotional support in dealing with Jack's chill cruel edgy temperament.

It appears that Jack is emotionally sick and pretty far gone in morbid withdrawal from fellowship. His burning impatience with everyone and everything, when coupled with the fact that he hasn't a friend in the world, affords an acute symptom of maladjustment that merits psychiatric inquiry. Despite his brilliancy of mind he probably suffers from baffled envy of the common herd's seemingly comfortable, rough-and-ready conduct of life, and especially his disposition to tolerate "vulgar" intimacy, mutual frailties, etc., without too much distaste or alarm. His upstage attitude very likely is a bluff to cover an ingrained conviction of hopeless inadequacy in human relations.

MORE CONFUSED THAN 'COMPLEX'

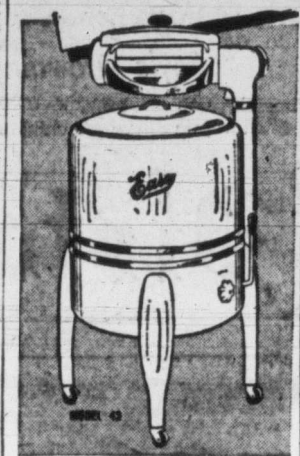

When trying to break the spell of profound discouragement attendant on striving to achieve rapport with Jack, you turn to Bill for consolation. And though his mild kindness and passive approachability are, for the moment, as balm to your spirit bruised by Jack's flintiness, still the encounter leaves you forlornly outside the citadel of his personality—no closer to him, really, than you are to Jack. His manner may be adroitly evasive,

LOOKING GLASS

Working too long under nervous tension produces fatigue that reflects unpleasantly in one's eyes; they become strained-looking, and sharp little lines appear in the surrounding area.

After such a day, when you come home dead-tired, try this wonderfully effective trick to give life to those tucked-out eyes. Heat a small quantity of soothing eye lotion in a saucepan, saturate cotton pads in it, and place them gently over your closed eyes. Lie down and relax like a rag doll for 15 to 20 minutes.

When you take another look at the end of the treatment, those lines will have vanished, and your eyes will be clear and bright for the social evening ahead.

where Jack's is bluntly rejecting—but the substance of the deal is the same.

Thus you see how your misguided attempt to escape anxiety at home, by pursuing an affair with Bill, leads merely to redoubled frustration and confusion of mind. And it is this confusion which sparks your notion that you are an incomprehensibly complex person. I can't solve your problem in this brief space; but I trust these remarks make clear that you need specialist help in removing your neurotic blinders.

M.H. Mary Haworth counsels through her column, not by mail or personal interview. Write her in care of The Times.

"BITTER-SWEET"

As I walked down the street in the centre of town, there was this creature... in a blue evening gown. A pale powder blue, I should say it was, sort of filmy stuff, of transparent gauze. I paused for a moment, a little keyed-up, to wonder what... kept her dress up??? She smiled down at me, her youth was full-blown, as if to say... she could hold her own. I smirked back, & threw her a wink, like I'd been around... & seen 'em sink. I lowered my eyes, sorta slyly & slow, I noticed approval of her rhythm & flow. Then I caught her eye, & like in a trance, I asked her if, she'd like to dance. She didn't answer, just swayed to me, we were young... & fancy free. Away in the distance, some music played, & so we waltzed & gently swayed. Then closer I held my mademoiselle, was it "Ashes of Roses"... or was it "Chanel"? Was it behind her ear, or on her clothes, whatever it was, to my head, thru my nose. For a second or two, a crazy quirk, why was I dancing & not back at work?? Was this a dream, or was I awake, whatever it was, it surely felt like. Much better I knew, from my head to my feet, than when trying to sell a chesterfield suite. The music stopped, we applauded for more, down there on View, outside of this store. Then with my handie I mopped my brow, "you surely can dance... Boy... and How," "And you," she replied, "haven't been on the shelf... you know sumptin'... your not bad yourself." Then we both laughed, & felt kinda nice, the music lured us back... to paradise. 'Twas a rumba this time, so I looked in her face, & I knew the gown... was still in place. 'Twas a little more strenuous, so I couldn't croon, as we madly danced to this Latin tune. All of a sudden, she broke away, and whirled about, all giddy & gay. But I was in there, caught her mood, as she fell back... in my aptitude. Once again, the music ended, we gripped our hands, & beautifully blended. "Tell me," she panted, "just what do you do." I looked again, at her powder blue. "Furniture," I quivered, "just down the street, & these moments with you so bitter-sweet. Taking me back 20 years or so, I'll always be grateful... now I must go. Back to work I gotta race," an impersonal look came back on her face. That come-hither glance seemed to have fled, she gazed, I thot, right over my head. I left her then, & didn't come back, to the "powder-blue" without any slack. If some gal should buy this evening dress, she'll sure get results, & a very close press. 'Cause if it did THAT to me, on a model of wax, just imagine on any... of YOUR... beautiful bare-backs.

In a block-long 3-story warehouse, jammed with furniture bargains, kitty-corners to the rear of our new Post Office.
Sort of wish we sold evening gowns, instead of silly old furniture, it's so much easier to glow them with glamour. Just imagine trying to glamorize these 2 used sawdust-burning ranges we have down here. I could say they both carry nickel-plated hopper corages, & are wearing pale cream enamel, & that their ovens are in good shape & not burnt out, but as I say, that sounds silly. Anyhoo... both are from good families, strong, sturdy & wholesome. If you can't go dancing & get smoke in your eyes, for just 85 bucks, we'll send up this prize.

Traditional Screen Lover Has Gone, Bob Ryan Says

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Shed a tear, folks; the traditional screen lover is dead.

This coroner's report comes from Robert Ryan, who observes that romance has expired in the movies. The cause?

"Maybe this isn't the time for people to think about love, what with the war, atom bombs and other things to worry about," the actor concluded.

Whatever the reason, it appears that Ryan's analysis is correct. Today's movies are concerned with crime, prejudice, greed, valor and almost everything but love.

"See for yourself," Ryan remarked, "you never hear the simple words 'I love you' on the screen any more. They have disappeared. Instead, the guy just takes the gal for granted or slugs her for good measure. Take a glance at some of our top personalities, Cary Grant never lays his hands on a girl in his movies. (Exception: With Ingrid Bergman in 'Notorious.') Spencer Tracy has nothing to do with them. James Cagney? He slaps 'em."

This is a long cry from the movie lover of yore, as epitomized by Rudolph Valentino, Roman Navarro, Antonio Moreno, etc.

"Ah, but there never was a lover like the roles they played," Ryan added. "It's silly to think that a sheik such as Valentino played ever existed. Fans might have sighed over him then, but his pictures are merely laughable now."

"Sound eventually did away with romance on the screen," he said. "When lovers began to talk, they became unbelievable. I don't think people talk much when they make love and it looks silly to see lovers on the screen tossing endearing phrases at each other."

Vancouver Firms Seek C.C.C. Deal

By HARRY YOUNG, Times Business Editor

Vancouver industrialists are making first steps towards bringing more defence contracts to British Columbia. Up to now most of the contracts issued by the Canadian Commercial Corporation have gone to firms in Ontario and Quebec, but B.C. firms want to get in to play their part in what must be regarded as a national effort.

Difficulties exist chiefly because of freight charges, and Vancouver industrialists are attempting to have the following points granted when tendering for contracts:

(1) F. O. B. point and all quotations to be "the factory."

(2) Some assurance materials in short supply will be constantly forthcoming.

(3) An opportunity to quote on a part contract basis.

Many British Columbia firms feel that they cannot tender under the present set-up for two chief reasons. The first is that wages are higher in the west than in the east, and the second that transportation costs, may be two ways, make it impossible to compete with firms in the east.

The Industrial Bureau of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce is in sympathy with efforts being made to secure defence contracts, and they stress the point that manufacturers desirous of quoting on defence contracts should register their capabilities and their desire with the Canadian Commercial Corporation in Ottawa. This will ensure that they are kept fully informed of contracts pending.

The interest being taken in the revival of British Columbia copper mines is stressed by the fact that over 300 civilian uses of copper have already been limited or banned by the U.S. government, effective March 1.

James Boyd, U.S. Defence Minerals administrator, says that producers have been under pressure for the past year, and that every source of copper is required.

He said that while estimates of requirements might be too high, it was better that they should have too much too soon, than too little too late.

The U.S. government knows of additional copper deposits in the U.S. which in five to eight years could raise the present production of 900,000 tons a year to 1,100,000 tons, but it takes a long time to develop copper deposits. It is on these grounds that so many mines are now turning their attentions seriously to copper veins on their workings.

First result of their agreement with B.A. Oils will be known to the locally directed Alliance Oil Co. within the next few weeks. Alliance which enjoyed little luck in its independent drilling operations, is now almost completely a holding company.

It has retained 15 per cent interest in 9,000 acres in the Antelope Hills in S.E. Alberta, and 6 per cent interest in a similar acreage at the Hanna field, both of which were sold to B.A.

B.A. in their turn has farmed out a section at Antelope Hills to Canadian Delhi, and that company is at present moving in drilling equipment at the location 55 miles northeast of Medicine Hat. The well will be known as Delhi-B.A. Antelope Hills No. 1.

It is expected that Delhi-B.A. will go ahead with an extensive drilling campaign on the land in which Alliance has retained a part interest.

Chairman of Alliance is W. Bradshaw Harrison of Duncan, and the board consists of Bert Davis, R. Ley and M. H. Roffey of Victoria, with A. P. Dawe as secretary.

Record Year For Massey-Harris

Massey-Harris Company has its greatest year in history, said James S. Duncan, president, in his report on the financial year ending Oct. 31. Sales were $164,128,198 and net earnings $17,540,803. Earnings equalled $11.39 per share, compared with $10.51 in 1949.

The sales constituted a new record, and Mr. Duncan reports that expansion in the United States and rapid development in Great Britain were large factors.

Abbott Delays Decision On Gold 'Freedom'

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Abbott said today in an interview that no decision has been taken on a suggestion that Canada allow the free sale of industrial gold in world markets.

He was commenting on rumors in Paris, London and New York that Canada may embark on such a course following action by South Africa to sell industrial gold.

Mr. Abbott said a request had been made by the gold-mining industry in a recent brief which pointed out, among other things, that the international monetary fund had allowed South Africa to sell industrial gold and suggested that Canada do the same.

"The request has been taken under consideration," said Mr. Abbott, "but no decision has yet been reached."

Under current regulations, all gold produced is sold to the mint at the fixed price of $35 per fine ounce. In United States funds. The industry believes the price should be about $50 per ounce or more in Canadian funds.

Broadcasters To Discuss Defence At Convention

Management representatives from most of the private radio stations in the province will visit Victoria next week for a convention of the B.C. Association of Broadcasters.

Among the subjects to be discussed will be the radio station's role in civil defence.

The two-day session will be held at the Empress Hotel.

Sam Ross, assistant manager of CKWX has been in Victoria making arrangements for the meeting.

Recruiting Shows Jump In December

OTTAWA (CP)—Bolstered by pay raises and the prospect of foreign service, armed forces recruiting went up 50 per cent in December, the Defence Department reports.

However, nearly three-fifths of the increase was wiped out by discharges. The forces took in 1,526 but their net gain for the month was 663.

Here is a breakdown of strengths at the end of June and December: Navy 9,246, 10,199; R.C.A.F. 17,284, 18,865; army (regular) 20,369, 22,447; army (special force) 10,268.

Labor Fights Rejection Of Unemployment Claims

The Victoria Labor Council will prepare a brief, listing arguments against the recent decision of the Unemployment Insurance Commission which threw out claims of more than 500 Victoria construction workers.

The decision by Mr. Justice Alfred Savard was made against carpenters and laborers idled last April during the Evans, Coleman Johnson strike.

Council delegates Wednesday night termed the decision most unfair since no appeal is possible, they decided to ask amendment of the law.

The brief will be presented to Labor Minister Gregg and Fisheries Minister Mayhew.

Scouts Enjoy Healthy Year In Victoria

The year just passed marked another milestone for the Scout movement in Victoria. Alex Hendry, president of the Greater Victoria Boy Scout Association, reported at the annual meeting Wednesday night.

Mr. Hendry stated that not only had membership increased but that the general scouting standard had been improved and organizational framework strengthened. He stressed the need for more leaders.

E. A. Estlin, district commissioner, sounded a note of optimism in his report.

Freeman King, executive commissioner, reported 1,575 youths were enrolled in the scouting movement here.

He reported Scout groups were organized during the year on James Island, at View Royal, and the University School, also a troop at Colwood and a pack at Fairfield. Second packs, he said, were organized to cope with added enlistment in James Bay and Esquimalt districts.

Mr. Hendry was returned as district president.

Gordon R. Sword was elected vice-president; A. B. White, treasurer, and Maj. H. B. Hunter, secretary.

G. F. Dunn was named auditor; Mr. Estlin returned as district commissioner, and Mr. King as executive commissioner.

Many Pay Tribute To John L. Clay

In the presence of a crowded congregation Rev. J. W. L. McLean, assisted by Dr. W. G. Wilson, conducted services for lawyer John Leitch Clay Wednesday afternoon at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

The altar front was hidden by banks of floral tributes.

Active pallbearers were Campbell Sanson, N. D. Hall, Gilling Scott, Alan MacFarlane, Lloyd McKenzie, George Gregory and Alderman W. Skillings.

Honorary pallbearers were Col. D. McGugan, Dr. J. D. Hunter, J. B. Clearhugh, Gordon Cameron, R. A. Wootton, J. R. Nicholson, Ernest Amott, T. H. Burns, Oswald Dorman, H. B. Olson and David Millar.

Following the church service a ceremony was conducted at the Royal Oak cremation chapel by Mr. McLean and Dr. Wilson.

Hayward's Funeral Co. was in charge of arrangements.

Central Saanich Passes By-laws

By-laws to enable the newly formed Central Saanich to operate have been passed by the council. The loan by-law to raise $10,000 was first to get approval.

Sewer and plumbing by-laws were based on Saanich by-laws and will be subject to revision.

Jack Taylor of Saanich will act as building and plumbing inspector and W. T. Copithorne, electrical inspector.

Motions were passed to ask the proper authorities to apply the Municipal Superannuation Act to Central Saanich employees, and to rule that all amenities paid former Saanich employees be paid by Central Saanich.

The council will ask the Department of Health and Welfare to provide social welfare services to the municipality for the usual rate of 15 cents per capita per annum.

Printing Craftsmen To Receive Charter

A charter will be presented to the recently-revived Victoria Club of Printing House Craftsmen at a dinner meeting Saturday night at 7 in the Club Sirocco.

The charter will be given by Allan Clark, Vancouver, second vice-president of the Pacific Society of the craftsmen's organization.

Principal speaker of the evening will be Stuart Keate, publisher of the Victoria Times.

Racing 'Sheet' Given Legality

MONTREAL (CP)—Recorder-in-Chief Roland Paquette ruled Wednesday that a publication carrying race results can be considered a newspaper and dismissed a charge against Sam Feldman, owner of Peel Publishing Company which publishes the Daily Tuff.

Recorder Paquette said that the public has the right to receive information necessary or useful in making bets on the local race tracks, at the parliament. In his judgment, he upheld the argument of defence counsel John Crankshaw, who claimed that the publisher received the same information available to daily newspapers in Montreal.

THERE IS NO ONE TO SAY NO TO HIM
Let's suppose you are an ordinary, average citizen — a plumber, a storekeeper, a farmer or what-have-you.
Let's suppose, also, you have a 12-year-old son you think is pretty bright. You feel that, with education and application, he could go a long way — could rise right to the top in business, in industry, or in one of the professions.
Well, did you ever stop to think that, here in Canada, our way of life — our economic and political system, if you want to call it that — is wholly geared to giving your boy exactly that chance? It is! And there are examples all around you.
Your boy may have to work hard and fight hard to get the education he requires. That won't hurt him — in fact it will help him. Nearly every successful man or woman has worked hard and fought hard to become successful.
But under our free opportunity system there is no one to say "NO" to him — no one to say "Here is your spot in life, and here you will stay for life." The field is wide open. There is opportunity for every young man who has brains and ability and the desire to make a contribution to the country's development and the general welfare.
It is a pretty good system under which to bring up your children.

PYLTON FOR PILES
Every day we receive letters praising the new Pyltone Treatment. We expect them because we know the success of Pyltone from Coast to Coast. One bottle will show you the results we claim for Pyltone, no matter your age, nor how long-standing or severe your affliction with piles. Your money refunded at once if Pyltone fails to give results you expect.
Pyltone results last because this new way treats the trouble at its source, which is always internal. Pyltone (a liquid taken orally) goes directly and quickly to the inner cause of piles of any kind. Ask your druggist for Pyltone.
